NOTES

PURPOSE

The purpose of this booklet is to assist women who have experienced/are experiencing domestic violence, provide information for them and their families about the services available in the Eastern Suburbs area and raise awareness about domestic violence. Domestic Violence impacts the whole family and can occur in a variety of relationships, including older women and women in same sex relationships.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

What is Domestic Violence?

Domestic Violence occurs when a person in the relationship acts abusively, using tactics of power and control to dominate the other person. These tactics/behaviours take many forms including; physical, emotional, psychological and financial abuse.

Examples of Domestic Violence can include:

- physical assault (punching, pushing, kicking, spitting, slapping)
- psychological, emotional abuse and verbal abuse (including threats, put-downs, insults)
- sexual assault and abuse such as forced sex
- financial or economic abuse such as controlling finances or resources
- social abuse such as isolating the woman from family and friends
- stalking and intimidation
- children who witness domestic violence

Effects on Children

Research has shown that domestic violence, like all forms of child abuse, can have a long term impact on children's social and emotional development and for their future as well balanced parents, partners or citizens.

The key factor is that no matter how they show their distress, all children who live in a home where domestic violence exists are affected by it to some degree and some are severely traumatized.

Children affected by domestic violence can benefit from counselling and/or children's support groups.

Effects On Women

Women who experience Domestic Violence often report experiencing feelings or symptoms such as (but not limited to);

- Low self esteem
- Paranoia
- Loss of trust in men
- Aggressiveness
- Becoming withdrawn
- Feeling isolated
- Depression
- Helplessness
- Guilt
- Lack of confidence
- Reduced parenting ability
- Physical and emotional health issues

APPREHENDED VIOLENCE ORDERS (AVO'S)

There are two ways an Apprehended Violence Order (AVO) can be initiated:

Police Initiated AVO

If the police apply for an AVO on a woman's behalf, a police prosecutor will represent the woman in court.

Despite having the police prosecutor represent the woman in this matter, she may still seek legal advice and advocacy through the Sydney Women's Domestic Violence Court Advocacy Service on 92877505

Chamber Registrar AVO (Private Application)

If a woman applies for an AVO herself;

- At Waverley Local Court and the Downing Centre Local Court, the Sydney Women's Domestic Violence Court Advocacy Service provides court advocacy. In some cases, women may be entitled to free legal representation or advice.
- If the matter goes to hearing, the applicant will require legal representation. She may be entitled to free legal representation through Legal Aid or through a private practitioner on a grant of money through Legal Aid. The SWDVCAS may be able to assist with arranging legal representation.

SYDNEY WOMEN’S DOMESTIC VIOLENCE COURT ADVOCACY SERVICE (SWDVCAS)

The SWDVCAS provides an advocacy service to women in Apprehended Domestic Violence Order matters. The SWDVCAS operates at Waverley Local Court and at Downing Centre Local Court.

Each AVO list day a room is available for women, where they can feel safe whilst attending Court. Male defendants are unable to enter this room. At court on AVO list day, you will be able to speak with a court advocacy worker. Aboriginal and CALD specialist workers are also available. These workers may assist you with any of the following:

- Liaise with police about your AVO (if it is a police application);
- Explain the court process and some of the possible outcomes;
- Provide information about AVOs and answer questions you may have ;
- Refer you to other services in the area as appropriate, for example, counseling services, tenancy services or family law referrals;
- Provide free legal representation or advice from solicitors working with the service (in some circumstances).
